THE silver commission, in its report to conthe relations of metals in times past shows that the fall in the price of silver is not due to any excessive production, as compared with gold. It is not now seriously maintained anywhere that any recent fact in the production of silver is among the causes of its relative decline. The causes of the recent change in the relation of gold and silver are mainly the demonetization of silver by Germany, the United States, and other countries, for silver, and by the enormous exaggerations causes, principal and accessory, reached its culminating point in the panic of July, 1876. In the London silver market many of these causes are essentially temporary; the Asiatic accustomed force, and the delusions in repect to the Nevada mines no longer exist. COLUMBIA, March 2.—The supreme court of South Carolina has had before it for two weeks the case of Tilda Morris, brought up on a writ of habeas corpus to test the validity of a pardon from Wade Hampton. It would have been decided a week ago but for the sudden illness of Chief-Justice Moses. This left the decision to Justices Willard Wright (the latter colored). Willard announced his willingness to decide for Hampton. Wright was expected to decide against thampton. Tuesday morning last was set by the court for a decision, but Justice Willard appeared and announced that the court was still consulting on the case, and yesterday it was learned that on that morning Judge was learned that on that morning Judge the rules and to adopt the resolution reciting that Wells, Anderson and Casanave, members of the Louisiana and Casanave, members of the Louisiana the custody of the was learned that on that morning Judge Wright was induced to sign an order discharging Tilda Morris, thus recognizing the validity of Hampton's pardon. He asserts validity of Hampton's pardon. He asserts that the beautiful that he did it while in fear for his life. He says that Judge Willard told him that the Democrats could no longer be restrained, and Democrats could no longer be restrained, and when it should be announced to the waiting crowd in the court-room that nothing but his (Wright's) obduracy stood in the way of Hampton's recognition, their full fury would be visited upon him. He says also, that Willard brought George Conner, the leading the consultation room.

Willard brought George Conner, the leading the consultation room. Hampton counsel, into the consultation room, and Conner told him that if they did not get Mr. Hurd to release the members of the a favorable decision many lives would be sacrificed. While laboring under great mental distress and fear. Judge Wright signed the order, but refused to sign the opinion of Willard which sustained it, and he also exacted a promise that it should not be filed intil Friday. He yesterday filed an opinion denying the validity of Hampton's pardon, with the following indorsement: "Having attached my name, on the twenty-seventh ulti-mo, to an order discharging the petitioner in this case, without due consultation, I do now, upon more mature deliberation, hereby recall, revoke and cancel my signature to said order and substitute the foregoing opinion in its place." The court meets to-day, and it is expected that Willard will announce the orexpected that will be w der of the twenty-seventh, signed by himself and Wright, as the decision of the court.

Wright Runs away.

Columbia, March 2.—At eleven o'clock army, deficiency, and military academy bills this morning the supreme court-room was crowded to hear the decision in the Tilda Morris habeas corpus case, involving the validity of Hampton's pardon.
Associate-Justice Willard appeared on the bench, but the colored justice, Wright, was bsent. The sheriff was sent to look for Wright, and returned with the information that he had not been seen since yesterday morning. Owing to the lack of a full bench, Justice Willard adjourned the court until Monday. The absence of Wright at this juncture creates much excit ment. Another Version of Judge Wright's Case. NEW YORK, March 2.-A Herald special was brought upon the colored judge to get a decision in favor of Chamberlain. Judge Willard, although a Republican, was known to be inflexible in the conviction that Hampton was governor, but if Wright could be infuenced, it was a tie, and no decision could be had. Judge Wright resisted the pressure manfully, and it was ascertained from reliable authority that on the twenty-seventa ally in fear of his life, and said that his convictions of the laws were with Hampton, but that if he went against his race he would be killed, and signed an opinion recanting and revoking his order of the twenty-seventh,

Just as the cabinet met to-day President-Elect Hayes, accompanied by General Sher-man and Governor Dennison, called at the Executive Mansion, Mr. Hayes desiring to pay his respects to the President. The dis-tinguished party were immediately ushered nto the council chamber, where the cabinet was in session, and all the proceedings were stopped, so that the courtesies and formalities of introduction might proceed. The President-el-ct was cordially greeted and con-gratulated by President Grant and the members of the cabinet, all of whom, with the exception of Secretary Morrill, who was kept away by sickness, were present, and mutual expressions of happiness were exchanged at the termination of the question that has agi-tated congress and the country. A general conversation was briefly held, and the President and President-elect had an earnest, brief conversation of some minutes duration, President Grant acquainted the President-elect of the directions given him concerning the new occupancy of the Executive Mansion and the arrangements made in regard to the courtesies attending the inaugural ceremonies, so far as concerned the present Chief Magistrate. Several personal and political friends of the President-elect were at the Executive Mansion and when he and his party left all shook hands with him before he entered his carriage. From the Executive Mansion the party drove to the capitol, proceeding at once, by invitation of the president of the senate, to the Vice-President's room, where an informal recep-tion was held. All the Republican and many Democratic senators called to pay their re-spects, and were presented to President-Elect Hayes by Senator Ferry. Subsequently a large number of the members of the house and other persons of prominence called and tendered their congratulations. Webb Hayes, son of the President-elect, was one of the distinguished party that called at the White House and capitol.

the first day of his a luministration to the last

Columbus, Ohio, March 2.—When Governor Hayes departed for Washington, he left his resignation in the governor's office, to be filed on future notice. A telegram was Columbus, February 28, 1877. In the state of Ohio, my resignation to take effect on the second day of March next.

R. B. HAYES.

Upon receipt of this telegram, Lieutenant-Governor Thomas L. Young was notified of Governor Hayes's resignation. He at once proceeded to the executive department, where the coth of office as governor was administrated.

nign office, and the personal respect he de-serves. He is not the President of his party. high office, and the personal but of the whole people, and as such it has always been the custom to treat him. Grant has forfeited the right to be so regarded, and he has proved himself to be a man of tastes so low and associates so mean and scandalous that gentlemen may avoid his society; but he is our first President who thus brought discredit on the office. however, will in right be no President at all. He will get the place only because the and the will of the people was thus defeated. He will take possession of the White House by a fraudulent lease, executed by the ras-cally Florida and Louisiana returning boards and sustained by the packed electoral commission. Under such circumstances the peo-ple who believe in truth and honesty should let him severely alone, keep away from his inauguration, take no part in his receptions, decline invitations to his dinners, and always coldly regard him when he appears in public. There is a certain formal intercourse that senators and representatives must hold with the fraudulent President, but there should be no other. The protest against his occupancy should be quiet always, but unceasing.

a very serious matter, cheating the people of the United States, and forcing them to accept President whom they have not elected The President so inaugurated should be made to feel this fact and the rebellion of the people against such an unparalleled wrong and outrage. He should be made to feel it daily and hourly that he is only tolerated, and is nothing more than a fraudulent President. DIED.
